

Lebensgrundlagen für morgen sichern

Scientist (f/m/d)

Data processing department – at one of its three places of work (Quedlinburg, Braunschweig or Berlin)

Application deadline: 31st August 2020 for reference number: QLB-DV-WA-01-20

Your responsibilities

- Identification of steps within systematic reviews whose efficiency can be increased by the use of AI-based data analysis methods;
- Identification/development and testing of relevant approaches;
- Implementation of appropriate components and scripts in CADIMA in cooperation with the software development team of the JKI;
- Documentation and presentation of implemented results;
- Publication of results in national and international scientific journals.

Your profile

- Graduated from university with an academic degree in computer sciences, bioinformatics or any related discipline;
- Extensive experience with object-oriented programming languages;
- Strong expertise in AI-supported data analysis (machine learning approaches, neural networks, text mining etc.);
- Knowledge in the field of evidence synthesis (systematic reviews) are desired;
- Good knowledge of the English and German language in speaking and writing;
- Driver's license class German B (III) and the willingness to conduct business travels in Germany and abroad;
- Independent, autonomous work, personal commitment, ability to work in a team, ability to work under pressure, flexibility and mastery of the common office software are assumed.

We offer

- Opportunity to work in Quedlinburg, Braunschweig or Berlin according your personal situation;
- Varied, challenging and interesting job in an international working environment;
- Fulltime employment with 39.0 hours a week for two years. The employment contract is based on the collective agreement for the public service (TVöD). The time limit of 2 years is in accordance with § 2 para. 1 Act of Academic Fixed-term Contract (WissZeitVG).
- Remuneration according to salary group E13 TVöD.
- An entry as early as possible.

The Julius Kühn Institute (JKI) is an equal opportunities employer. Where possible, we offer flexible working time models to reconcile work and family life. The JKI is committed to inclusion. Applications from people with disabilities are therefore expressly welcome and given special consideration in the selection process.

Your application

Please send your complete application, in particular letter of motivation, CV and copies of relevant certificates (e.g. school-leaving and university certificates, qualified job references), preferably by e-mail to bewerbungen.quedlinburg@julius-kuehn.de (one single PDF file, max. 10 MB, other file formats will not be accepted), quoting the reference number QLB-DV-WA-01-20. The deadline for receipt of applications is 31st August 2020.

More information

Steffen Kecke

Phone: +49 (0) 3946 47-2400

E-Mail: steffen.kecke@julius-kuehn.de